OSU CVM students travel to northern California to participate in Remote Area Veterinary Services program

The Rural Area Veterinary Services (RAVS) is a program of the Humane Society of the United States. Below is a link to an article and slideshow that the San Francisco Chronicle made about a RAVS clinic in Hoopa, California last March.

Five veterinary students from our College participated: Ragan Garrett from the Class of 2011; and Jeff Nickel, Matt Carnett, Jeni Gallagher and Austin Bell from the Class of 2010. They gave up their spring break to learn and help in an area where veterinary care is nonexistent.

Merck Merial Veterinary Scholars

The Merck Merial summer research program is currently getting underway. Participating students have been matched with faculty mentors and their research topics have been chosen. Starting next week the students will attend two days of seminars that will teach them how to design experiments, keep a laboratory notebook, create a research poster, and other skills needed in order to complete a research project.

The culmination of the program will result in the students attending a poster session where they will present their research project to their peers. The students will also attend a Merck Merial National Symposium where they'll meet veterinary students from other veterinary colleges involved in the program. The symposium will be at Michigan State University in East Lansing, Michigan on July 31– August 3 and all six veterinary scholars and the program director, Dr. Christiane Loehr, will be attending.

The following students and projects have been selected for this year's program.

Student	Mentor	Topic
Brian Dugovich	Drs. Gillin & Kent	Sage grouse endoparasites
Tessa Fiamengo	Dr. Kutzler	GRF suppression of cyclicity in mares
Andrea Lear	Dr. Hall	Selenite and Selenate Se supplementation in sheep
Jocelyn Riehl	Drs. McKenzie & Gorman	Impact of repeated abdominocentesis on cell counts of abdominal fluid in horses
Anna Rothman	Drs. Bulmer & Sisson	2D electrophoresis of heart valve proteins
Courtney Smith	Dr. Cebra	Metabolic effect of Glipizide and Exentadine in camelids

For more information about the program check it out online at <http://cvm.msu.edu/research/summer-research-program-1/2008-veterinary-scholars-symposium>, or contact Dr. Christiane Loehr, the program director, at christiane.loehr@oregonstate.edu.

New faculty grants

The Technologies Resource Fee Committee at Oregon State University has recently approved two grant proposals for the College of Veterinary Medicine. Dr. Christiane Loehr will receive $17,449 for her grant "Video projector for necropsy demonstrations" and Alison Bobal will receive $9,900 for "McDowell Veterinary Library computer replacement".
